The Most Creative category recognizes Organisers who have executed actions on World Snow Day that showcase creativity. For 2023 the Award for Most Creative was won by Jahorina Olympic Center (BIH) who together with TechnoAlpin produced an action called "A Thousand Skis for Children". The activation saw 300 pairs of skis donated. 100 of those pairs were provided to children on World Snow Day and the remaining 200 will be given away during future events in the season. The Jahorina team, together with TechnoAlpin, will look to obtain another 700 pairs of skis.

Best World Small World Snow Day

Prize: 2'000CHF

Event report: <https://worldsnowday.com/8-86-2023/reports/finland/levi-ski-resort/world-snow-day-levi-2023>

The category with the most entrants, the Best Small World Snow Day recognizes events that are under 500 participants. This year's Best Small World Snow Day category saw 31 entrants and was won by Levi Ski Resort. FIS would like to provide an honorable mention to Blind River Ski Club and their efforts to engage schools. The engagement of schools is key criteria in the judging of the Best Small World Snow Day category.

Best World Snow Day

Event report: <https://worldsnowday.com/154-81-2023/reports/egypt/ski-egypt/ski-egypt-snow-world-day>

The Best World Snow Day is the most coveted prize in the World Snow Day Awards. To be eligible, Organisers must have over 500 participants. FIS recognizes that achieving 500 participants is no small feat. This year's winner is Ski Egypt. Ski Egypt is a first time World Snow Day host and staged a well-rounded event. Amongst the many actions, their work with persons with an intellectual disability stood out. To achieve this Ski Egypt partnered with Special Olympics Egypt and provided free ski lessons for groups of special needs persons during the World Snow Day period.

FIS would like to thank all Organisers for their continued work and effort to bring children to the snow on World Snow Day. A congratulations to the winners of the World Snow Day Awards and special thank you to all the entrants into this years World Snow Day Awards. The full list of results can be viewed here. The next edition will take place for World Snow Day 2025.
